Public Engagement and Promotion

The University of Iowa is engaged with Iowans across the state every day in many ways from free blood pressure screenings to providing business startups advice and everything in between. This engagement is the key to developing strong and lasting relationships with the citizens of Iowa along with an understanding of our value.

For far too long the University of Iowa has quietly practiced part of our mission of service and creating a better future for Iowans. Now is the time for the University to begin telling our story of community engagement with Iowans from border to border and river to river.

How to Engage and Promote

The Office of Government Relations is ready to help you and your organization share your stories of engaging Iowans with the legislators that represent that area.

What do you need to do?

All we need you to do is to provide the Who, What, When, Where and Why and we will do the rest by putting it into a standard template and sending it to legislators.

Please send all of your engagement activities to Ashley Rittenhouse at Ashley-rittenhouse@uiowa.edu we will then do the rest.

Local Earned Media

Working with University Communication and Marketing we will also develop a press release that will be sent to all of the local daily and weekly newspapers in the area. This is yet another way for the University and your college to tell its story of local engagement. Depending on what is needed we may ask for some more details or photos if you have them in order to beef up the release.
